NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

It is requested that all communications relating to Subscriptions, Advertisements, &c., be addressed to the "Manager, Hongkong Telegraph," and not to the Editor.

Letters on Editorial matters to be sent to "The Editor" and not to individual members of the staff.

Communications intended for publication must be accompanied by the name and address of the author, not necessarily for publication, and an assurance of good faith.

Whilst the columns of the Hongkong Telegraph will always give full scope to the free discussion by correspondents of all questions affecting public interest, it must be distinctly understood that the Editor does not in any way hold himself responsible for opinions thus expressed.

IN THE SINGAPORE IMPORT RETURNS for the quarter ending 31st March last, says the Singapore Gazette, four chests of tea are entered as from Sarawak. This is, we believe, the first tea produced in, and exported from, this country.

HISTORY doesn't always repeat itself. An Australian telegram says that "a nugget of gold weighing 110 ozs. was found in the Happy Valley near Bowen."—The Bowen which our Happy Valley knows didn't turn out much of a nugget.

MR. ROBINSON's decision in the charge brought against the British barque G. H. Widdopis is grossly unjust, whichever way it may be taken. If Capt. Hansen were innocent of the charges made against him, he ought to have been acquitted; if guilty, the full penalty the law allows should have been imposed. A fine of $50 for an offence of this character is playing with justice.

MR. ROBINSON it is notified that Her Majesty has not been advised to exercise her power of disallowance with respect to Ordinance No. 5 of 1890—an Ordinance to amend the law relating to infant vaccination, and to provide for the registration of persons vaccinated in the Colony.

THE ADMIRALTY have issued instructions for the Mutine, which will shortly complete her term of service on the China station, to return to England to be paid out of commission. The Mutine is to be relieved at Hongkong by the gun-vessel Peace, which is to be transferred from the Cape West Coast of Africa station.

THE MAN WHO writes to the Daily Press of this morning re the case of the Queen v. Leslie, on his own showing, a galoot of the first water. He can't help it, of course; he was born that way, and there may be some doubt whether the editor of the Press who passed such childish rubbish was responsible for his own actions. After the first hearing at the Police Court, Leslie was bound to be committed for trial before a jury at the Criminal Sessions, and all other proceedings were mere waste of time.

DR. J. W. HERON, physician-in-charge of the Royal Hospital at Seoul, Korea, and medical adviser to the King of Korea, died, of congestion of the lungs, in the capital of that benighted land on the 26th ultmo. Dr. Heron was a member of the American Methodist Missionary Society, and was originally sent out, in 1885, by that body to labour in the gospel, as the saying is in the land of the Morning Calm. He succeeded Dr. H. R. Allen when the latter entered the Korean political arena in the autumn of 1887, and retired with the now disgraced Pak Cheung Yang to "do" the diplomatic in Washington.

THE BATAVIA Nieuwsgroote of the 4th August reports the arrival there of an American lady parachutist, Miss Gladys Van Tassel, from Australia. She made a successful ascent there this month, the balloon being filled with heated air instead of gas. Miss Van Tassel set out to make a tour through Java with her balloon.

A JAPANESE paper reported a short time ago that a torpedo had been recovered by the fishermen at Wada Muru. It has been examined by the captain of the British gunboat Plover, which arrived from Chemulpo on the 6th instant, and has been identified as belonging to the British cruiser Severn. The fishermen were rewarded with $30.

AN OLD SAMPAN woman was discovered, this morning, with 25 taels of prepared opium very cleverly concealed on her person, which she was smuggling ashore. She was brought before Mr. Robinson and fined $50, or, in default, three months imprisonment with hard labour. A similar case was before Mr. Wodehouse, in which a Chinaman was discovered in possession of no taels of prepared opium, and he was fined $100, with the alternative of a six months' oakum-picking contract.

THE UNITED SERVICE GAZETTE of the 12th ultimo says:—Captain G. T. H. Boyes is to command the Minotaur, which vessel, after taking part in the manœuvres, will most likely replace the Victor Emmanuel as receiving ship at Hongkong. The Minotaur is an iron broadside ship of 10,690 tons and 6,700 h.p., 400 feet long, completed in 1857; her side armour is 5 in. thick, with a wood backling to 10 in. Her armament consists of seventeen 12-ton M.L.R., fourteen machine, and fourteen light guns; her speed is about 14 knots.

THE BATAVIA paper says that the victorious troops returning from Edi have been enthusiastically received at Samarang, the garrison place. This episode in the long-drawn out Aceh war may rank high in importance from the change in tactics, characterizing it. For the first time since the war began 17 years ago, artillery came prominently into play against the Achinese forts, and mainly contributed to the easy victory won by the troops. Formerly, storming parties came too much into fashion, with consequently heavy loss to the attacking force. The use of artillery enabled the Achinese to be driven out of almost impregnable fortifications in Edi with slight loss to the troops. In Aceh Proper, the army has been armed with magazine rifles, and improved cannon have been substituted for guns on old models. A military balloon service, and telegraph communication between Aceh and Batavia all show that the war has entered upon a new phase with prospects of greater vigour. Another man-of-war, the Flora, has been ordered to Aceh to reinforce the blocking squadron. The latter now takes in almost all the Netherlands naval forces in the Indian Archipelago. At other stations only three men-of-war do duty.

THE EATING-SNATCHERS are not yet all jailed. On Saturday night a Chinaman walking along Wellington Street was suddenly relieved of a pair of the much-coveted ornaments, valued at $35. The thief was at once arrested by a district watchman, and brought before Mr. Wodehouse at the Police Court this morning. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour, and 15 strokes of the rattan.

THE GERMAN steamer Remus, which arrived at Singapore on the each kept a record of the money won and lost; there was no trouble or bother or noisy altercations over disputed bets. Little or no ready money changed hands, but one is quite at liberty to back one's fancy providing any one will wager with you. Forty-two dollars changed hands over one night—not ruinous gambling this. But to return, just as we entered the room preliminaries were being arranged for a set-to, and out on the verandah deep and earnest consultation were being held; had they been actual counsels of war the gravity and the all-absorbing interest manifested by those engaged in matching two wily crickets could not have been greater. The respective owner, in view of a tussle, compare their chosen champions most carefully from stem to stern, their weight, their width, and examine every conceivable point so that one may not have the advantage of the other. When a pair have been selected each is handed over to the charge of a master of ceremonies, the dress of which individual "old custom" demands shall be a suit of spectacles and the lower half of a suit of pyjamas. These gentlemen cannot accurately be said to belong to the ancient honourable order of bottle holders, but rather brush holders, and with their brushes they proceed to knock off what little hair there is on a cricket's back, and as with human beings so it is with crickets, when their hair is off and their backs are up they simply spoil for a fight. The covers are then removed and at it they go. The concern of the crowd in the battle is of course proportionate to the amount of "oo" at stake, but they all push and huddle round the tub. The change that personal interest works in any object is really wonderful, for whilst preparations were being made for the second battle which took place we looked on the two combatants with eyes of indifference, caring not a jot who won, and not even knowing either from which. However, an acquaintance standing by, who professed that he knew all about the science of the game, pointed out the one upon whose victory he was prepared to wager his soul. There is contagion in this, so we forthwith planked down a full weight Mexican on the one the sterner fancied, while he also supplemented his advice to the extent of fifty cents—a bold thing for him to do. However once we had the shekel on our man we began to look upon him in quite a different light; he was far better looking than his rival, had longer and hairier legs, and claws that only a fighting cricket of the first water could ever hope to possess. In fact in all outward appearances he had no equal, and in a pitying sort of way we contrasted his points with those of his antagonist—all at the latter's expense, of course.

The covers being at last removed the fight began, and with a swish and a chirp they were at each other's throats like thoroughbred bulldogs, tugging and chawing as if the battle had been of their own making. First blood was scored by our favorite—that is, at least, if tossing his rival heels over head can be called so. Round and round was also ours, while round 3 was a draw, but No. 4 was undoubtedly in the rival's favor, and with dismay we noticed that our chosen one hardly justified the lofty expectation we had formed of him. That he was a scientific fighter left no room to doubt, and that he was also a polo man he demonstrated with equal clearness later on. While victory seemed to smile on him he shewed well, but with the fifth round, which he lost, he also lost self respect, everything, indeed, excepting his wonderful dash of speed which he used to good advantage whenever he found things getting triffl'd with for him. Fight fair he would not, for he had evidently heard that:

He who fights and runs away.

May live to fight another day. However we lost our shekel, and gained what consolation we could from the quiet observation of a critical bystander who was to the effect that the defeated one was a noble specimen of a fighter, but "his heart no longer thumper." True, thought we, but crickets are not the only creatures who have failed to fulfil the high expectations formed of them by lacking this one essential.

That any fight is better than no fight every man with British blood is bound to admit, and that is about all we can conscientiously say for cricket fighting. What constitute the points of a boss fighter is still to us a mystery as deep as it is solemn, but in this we rather lean to the opinion of the Great Captain, that as provision was once on the side of the big battalions it is even so to-day on the side of the big crickets.

THE ACCIDENT TO CAPTAIN PATERSON.

The Malacca correspondent of the Singapore Free Press writes that Dr. Head returned from Kwala Pilah on Wednesday evening, (6th inst.) and tells the following account of the accident to Capt. Paterson, of the 91st Highlanders. He and Lieut. Sutherland, of the same regiment, were in Gembuchi after elephants. Capt. Paterson saw one coming towards him, fired, and missed him with the first barrel, but hit him with the second, though not mortally. Capt. Paterson then sprang behind a tree, but the elephant caught him with his trunk round the waist, twisted him round and threw him, although Capt. Paterson bit the animal on its head with his clubbed rifle. Whilst down, the elephant gored him through the thigh, the tusk fortunately going on the outside of the leg, thus missing the femoral artery. The animal then strove to knead Capt. Paterson to death with its knees; but he clung pluckily to the animal's tusk, and the elephant could not free himself. The struggle must have been fearful, as Capt. Paterson says he can well remember the animal's knees being pressed against his body, as it tried to push him off its trunk with them. The cooler attached to the party then came up shouting; and the elephant suddenly threw Capt. Paterson away, and bolted. This took place about noon on the 27th, and it was not until the 28th that Capt. Paterson could be moved. As they had no water fit to drink, Lieut. Sutherland sat by the wounded man all night squeezing the dew from the leaves into his mouth, as his thirst was naturally very great. The next day the sufferer was moved six miles through the jungle to a house; and then down the Gemuchi River to Jumpol. At Kwala Jumpol Dr. Head met them, and brought Capt. Paterson to Kwala Pilah, where he left him. Dr. Head is of opinion that, although the muscles of the thigh are dreadfully bruised and twisted, yet there is no reason why Capt. Paterson should not recover. The way in which Capt. Paterson kept his presence of mind, and the plucky manner in which he held on to the animal's trunk seem wonderful, and it is entirely to his action in a fearful emergency that he owes his life—for had he let go his hold of the trunk, he would probably have been crushed into a jelly in accordance with the usual method of an elephant in such a case. Capt. Paterson says, that although in such a terrible situation when the animal gored him, he could not feel pain, as the tusk passed on the outside of his leg. "Thank God, the brute has missed the femoral artery!"

The same writer wired on the 7th inst. that Dr. Head, who had returned to Malacca from Gembuchi, stated that Capt. Paterson was doing well.

THE BREAKAGE OF THE AUSTRALIAN CABLES.

The Singapore Free Press of the 8th inst. says:—The E. A. & C. Telegraph Company's steamer Sherard Osborne returned this morning after having successfully re-connected the submarine cables, two from Banjoewangie to Port Darwin, and one to Roebuck Bay, broken by volcanic disturbances on July 11. The operations have revealed an unusually violent change in the conformation of the ocean bed, which can be best described by following the course of the soundings and grapplings.

The first business was to find the exact spot where each line was broken. Going from Banjoewangie, feeling the way along, it was found that where the bottom used to be fairly level or gently undulating, sounding according to the Admiralty charts from 400 gradually increasing to 500 or 600 fathoms, there is now a sudden drop to 800 and 1,000 fathoms, the ground being very broken and irregular along the line of the fault. The first cable operated upon was the north-eastern one, laid down in 1880, from Banjoewangie to Port Darwin, and known as the "No. 2 Cable." This was found to be entire up to 50 knots out from Banjoewangie, just about the region of the sudden subsidence. From this point nothing but fragments, averaging about half a mile in length, could be found, until having gone a further 20 knots, they were able to connect with Australia. The 20 knots of new cable having been put down, communication was restored between Australia and the western world, on July 20th. The broken pieces recovered only made a total length of about 15 knots, the rest being irrecoverable and most probably buried by a fall of cliff along the edge of the sunken area, immediately after the general subsidence.

Having completed the first part of the operations the Sherard Osborne advanced slowly to the south-west to grapple for the Cable No. 1, or original Port Darwin cable, laid down in 1871. Here the grapping hooks snapped on the sharp reef and sandbank.
